

Once upon a time there were two children. Their names were Hansel and Gretel. They were poor so their step mother made their father take them into the woods and they had to find their way home.

Next, Hansel left a trail of stones and they followed it back home. After that, their father took them back again but this time Hansel left a trail of bread crumbs and the birds ate them. They were lost! The children found a gingerbread house. The house looked good enough to eat. They were really hungry. Hansel and Gretel went in the house to look for food. Inside was a bad witch! The bad witch locked Hansel and Gretel in a cage! The Witch made Gretel cook food to fatten Hansel up so that she could eat him! Hansel tricked the witch and Gretel pushed her into the oven. Gretel helped him out the cage.

Finally, when Hansel and Gretel went home their nasty step mother was gone. They took all the money from the witch and gave it to their father. He was so pleased. They all lived happily ever after.
